

CANCELLATIONS OF THE PROVISIONAL ERA IN LATVIA: 1919-1921

Purpose/Scope: This exhibit is a detailed study of the forms and types of provisional cancellations used in Latvia in the tumultuous period following the November 1918 declaration of independence and ending when standardized Latvian devices were introduced by the Latvia Post in early 1921.

Organization: The basic cancel types were used concurrently throughout the Latvian territory and had no geographic boundaries. This exhibit divides them into 6 main sections by cancel types. Within those sections, the items are shown by service types in the following order: postcards, ordinary letters, registered letters, parcel cards and other usages.

Historical/Philatelic Background: For centuries, Latvia was part of Imperial Russia or the German Empire. It remained a battlefield until January 1920 when, the Soviets were defeated. The Government, which had moved to the far west, returned to Riga. The Latvian government was ineffective during this time of relocation, local postmasters were left to choose or create temporary cancelling devices as there was little guidance. Some continued to use old Tsarist era devices if available; others resorted to modifying or creating their own new devices. These provisional cancellations were short lived and varied greatly in appearance from town to town.

Rarity and Condition: Numerous shown cancellations are exceedingly rare as they originated from tiny villages during times of duress which had little postal activity even in normal times. Markings have been selected for their clarity and variation. Space has limited this showing to the most difficult to obtain cancellations.

Especially significant items are highlighted with a maroon mat.
